Subject: RHI Meters

Hi Cathal

Our conversation from earlier in the week refers. I have spoken with the Technical Director in Ofgem and he has advised as follows:-

- It is good practice to seal meters but not a requirement
- If a meter is sealed and the seal subsequently tampered with Ofgem would be concerned and would want to investigate.

With that in mind if you have/or could obtain more details of sites where this is alleged to have happened the sites in question could be identified for inspection as part of the site audit programme about to get underway.

I am on leave from Lunchtime today until Thursday 16 June but if you have any more information if you get in to me by my return I will ask Ofgem to include the installations in question in the site audit programme.

Many thanks

Regards

Seamus
