Good afternoon Samantha,

I have been able to access the data on Huddle and from my reading of it I can see that although the individual has made an application in respect of RHI he has declared on the paperwork that the biomass boiler will be used to heat both an agricultural shed and a domestic property. He also has provided supporting paperwork in relation to his non-single domestic status. I would agree therefore with your conclusions that there isn't any cause for concern in relation to this application. I will forward this information onto my senior officers with a view to having the matter filed for no further action on our part.

Thank you for your assistance on this matter,

Regards

Hi Personal information,

I hope all's well. I'm sorry for the delay in getting back to you, our legal team needed to be involved.

We do have an application in relation to this individual, so we can share this you. Our preferred method for transferring this data is via Huddle (a secure data sharing portal)- we can set you up an account on this for you, if that's okay?

Also, we have conducted further investigation into the allegation the property is domestic, which concluded there isn't any cause for concern in relation to this.

Happy to chat if it's easier,

Thanks, Samantha

Hello Personal information,

I hope all's well. I'm sorry for the delay and about the red tape, but our legal team have asked that you make a DPA request to allow us to release any information. Would it be possible for you to let us know statutory basis for the request?

With kind regards,

Samantha
